Update the Conference
Leaders in digestive health specialties will address new and developing research, technology and guidelines for practice in several areas of digestive diseases and will help to bridge the communication and education gap between the various disciplines that treat digestive diseases. This two-day course will take place at Gordon Lodge in Baileys Harbor, WI.

About the Conference
This educational activity is designed for gastroenterologists, hepatologists, surgeons, radiologists, oncologists, fellows of these departments, other GI and hepatology related specialists and mid-level providers.

Intended Audience and Scope of Practice
This activity has been designed to change learner competence focusing on the American Board of Medical Specialties areas of medical knowledge, patient care and procedural skills, and practice-based learning and improvement.

Learning Objective
Upon completion of this activity, participants will gain competence in new and/or developing research, technology and guidelines that they will implement into their clinical practice relating to digestive diseases. This 2-day session will further enhance their ability to communicate with multiple specialty disciplines that care for these patients.

Policy on Faculty and Sponsor Disclosure
It is the policy of the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health that the faculty, authors, planners and other persons who may influence content of this CME activity disclose all relevant financial relationships with commercial interests in order to allow CME staff to identify and resolve any potential conflicts of interest. Faculty must also disclose any planned discussion of unlabeled/unapproved uses of drugs or devices during their presentation(s). Detailed disclosures will be made in the activity handout materials.
